Redline High-Frequency Trading Solution

Run faster, smarter trading strategies on a single server

Success in high-frequency trading requires that you react faster than your competition to changing market conditions. It's critical that your system has the ability to process large volumes of market data with the lowest possible latency. Getting the right data quickly and consistently, then executing on the information, is the solution.

Redline's InRush™ Accelerated Ticker Plant and Execution Gateway is the fastest trading solution on the market, delivering tick-to-trade performance in as little as 5 microseconds. As a single-server solution in as little as one rack unit, InRush accelerates the entire tick-to-trade path, eliminating networking hops and letting you achieve more fills and trading profits than your competition. The flexible InRush API gives you only the events you're looking for so you're reacting to only relevant data., Redline's trading solution surrounds your strategy with accelerated market data and execution handling that positions you to Lead with Speed.
